July 2005

Located in southwestern Montana, Jefferson County is Montana's 18th most populous with 10,857 residents, according to the 2004 U.S. Census Bureau estimates. Boulder, the county seat, is the state's 47th largest city with a population of 1,398, according to the 2004 U.S. Census Bureau estimates.

The 2004 Employment by Industry table (see inside) shows the government sector has nearly 36 percent of the total employment, mainly at the Montana Developmental Center in Boulder. The construction sector accounts for about 13 percent of the total private employment. The area is rich in mineral reserves and two large gold mines operate in Jefferson County. The mining sector covers about 25 percent of the total private employment and 43 percent of the total private wages.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, median income for Jefferson County households in 2002 was $43,621 (highest in the state), compared to Montana's median income of $34,105 for the same year. Median income addresses the per household income in the county (no matter how many people live in the home); per capita income (inside table) is total income in the county divided by the number of people in the county.

According to the Montana Almanac, by authors Andrea Merrill and Judy Jacobson, Jefferson County was one of the original nine counties of the Montana Territory and holds the Jefferson River, named by explorers Lewis and Clark for President Thomas Jefferson. The county was established in 1865.
